PHOTOGRAPH BY RICK STAFFORD

The earliest emblem of membership in Phi Beta Kappa was a square silver medal engraved on one side with the letters S P (for Societas Philosophiae) and on the other with ΦΒΚ, the initials of the Society's Greek motto ("Love of wisdom the guide of life"). The pointing finger and three stars symbolized ambition and the Society's three principles: friendship, virtue, and literature. This medal, which belonged to Zechariah Howard, A.B. 1784, is now in the Harvard University Archives, the gift of William G. Howard.
